PROBLEMS FACING STRICKEN WORLD

The most important and timely series of articles ever reprinted. Problems now confronting the world are more serious than those of war.

The blood of America and the Allied Nations was given for the sake of democracy. The blood of the world was given for the sake of democracy. Today it is democracy alone which is threatened, but the entire fabric of civilization. Do you read the cables from Europe with proper understanding? Do you know the real significance of events in a world?

In America steeped in indifference or are we so engrossed in money-making, our workers and population in general so bent on having a good time, that we cannot see the signs and portents? If so, our saturnalia may be a Belshazzar's feast or a bit of Roman holiday.

Ask anyone engaged in entering to popular taste, amusement or gratification. He will tell you that the public today demands the most expensive apparel, the highest priced and least nutritious of foods, the lightest and most frivolous forms of amusements—the latter spiced with as much viciousness as the pleasures will permit, wink at or connive at, all this while the world is a smoldering volcano.

Do you think that General Tasker H. Bliss, one of the high military authorities, was indulging in idle terms when he said a short while ago that a new war threatens Europe? Do you think that when Lloyd George and the other allied leaders went to Paris for the hastily summoned conference they were not impelled by a desire for a picnic and the opportunity to taste French wines?

Read this Epochal Series by Comerford, who went to Europe and made an exhaustive study especially for this service, from first hand information gleaned by a talented student of world affairs just what is doing. Know in terms as simple as a child's primer just what is Bolshevism; what Germany is doing; what the French think of us and about Japan and Russia. They begin in The Progress today.

WE SHOULD WORRY!!!

A WINE GOVERNOR

Governor Sprout may be trusted always to develop the right attitude and to put the punch into any statement covering his responsibilities to the people and as the executive head of a great Commonwealth. He made it clear again to a company of Pennsylvania and others in Washington this week that he is not admitting any ambition to prevail against his declared purpose to devote his time and his energies to the working out of great constructive policies for the good of the people of this State.

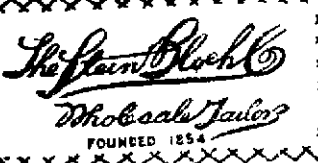

He would be less than human did he pretend not to be interested in the unmistakable trend toward him as the type of man who should occupy the White House and aid in the reconstruction problems which confront this country. But he realizes also that the best asset of a party or an individual in public life is a satisfactory and devoted service. He has no special ambition to pose as a favorite son, but should his election at Chicago create a demand for Governor Sprout as a constructive statesman, there can be no doubt that he would be available and his friends to a man would rally to his colors.

The Governor is not obsessed by the foolish notions of unbridled political visionaries. He is able to analyze conditions, to discern and to stand squarely on his feet when there is temptation to indulge in heroics. When he declared at Washington that the people "would like to exchange an overdone politics and vision for a period of sound sense and sound practice" he gave expression to the almost universal attitude of Americans with respect to National affairs.

His friends everywhere will be glad to observe that Governor Sprout is not being whirled from a perfectly safe and sane position by the beating of tom-toms or the clamorous demands of a man who do not always properly sense a situation.—Harrisburg Telegraph.

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS CURWENSVILLE

It is noticed in the list of marriage licenses issued last week, that Hugh Way, son of T. L. Way, of Pike township, was granted a permit to wed Miss Martha Rafferty, of this place.

Clair Peoples, who has been a clerk at the Park House for over two years, has resigned and will take over a job in the hard clay mines of the Crescent Refractories company.

A Japanese convert to Christianity puts upon his door every morning before leaving for his day's work: "I am a Christian, and if anyone likes to read my good book while I am out, he may." A commendable and beautiful spirit, truly, and perfectly practicable in heathen Japan, but in Christian America the proper thing to do is to close your shutters, double lock your doors, hide the key and have the policeman give a little special attention to your property.

Mid-winter examinations are now being held in the High school, and pupils are putting their noses pretty close to the desk lid and vying with each other in order to see who will have the best marks.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Daub, on Monday night, a young daughter.

A son of Enos Obrine, residing about one mile from town, is ill, suffering from leakage of the heart. The young man is subject to this affliction.

Sleighting parties are in vogue these moonlit evenings. Almost every night parties are going and coming, and the merry jingle of bells, coupled with the joyous laughter of those enjoying the ride, causes envy to rankle in the breast of us old ducks who have passed the age of such enjoyments, but brings before us most vividly memories of days gone by. Oh could we but go back to those delightful wintry nights, when fifteen or twenty young couples sled-loaded out the pike to Aunt Polly Drucker's house, danced the light fantastic toe for several hours, ate a grand supper, and often arrived home as day was breaking. Those were sled rides that still remain fresh in the memory of those youngsters, now gray-haired men of fifty years, what is left of them, to ponder over the thought that "times now are not what they used to be."

At a recent meeting a reorganization of the school board took place, two of the old board retiring and the men newly elected being sworn in. The new members of the board are: A. G. Woodward, of the second ward, and Dr. H. O. King, of the first ward. The officers elected by the new board are: President, C. O. Norris; vice president, Frank C. Mullen and secretary, Fred P. Robinson.

At a regular meeting of the Loyal Order of Moose held in their hall north Filbert street, on Monday evening, a full corps of officers were put in nomination for the ensuing term.

Several times during the past month we have been asked the question as to how many persons were buried in Oak Hill cemetery who were born prior to the year 1800. After considerable research we are able to give out the following information: John Antis 1784, Esther Antis, his wife, 1788, Andrew Brown 1790, Sarah Brown 1797, Jacob Bilger, Sr., 1783, Mary 1784, 1788, Jane Denmark 1790, Samuel Fleming 1786, Mary H. Fleming 1788, Abram Hartsock 1788, Esther Hartsock 1792, John Irvin, Sr., 1796, John Jordan 1781, Eve Jordan 1792, Henry Kepns, Sr., 1790, John Patton 1783, Susan Antis Patton 1791, Thomas Ross 1790, Robert Ross 1794, Anna Ross 1797, Charles Royston 1791. The last named being the first body to be buried in what is now known as Oak Hill cemetery.

Fred Kittelberger has changed his boarding house. Is boarding now at Pleasantville with Aunt Julia Harrington while his sister is recovering from scarlet fever.

John Olson, a resident of Grampian died yesterday morning at 4 o'clock inflammatory rheumatism being the cause of his death. His age was 54 years. He is survived by a widow and family of children. The funeral will be held on Saturday. Interment in Friends cemetery.

The Man Nobody Knew

is a serial of a different kind. It follows our policy to present the best in current fiction, each story dealing with a phase of life unlike the others. Authors with a talent for presenting in a wholesome, entertaining way unusual situations and odd, original plots have been selected. Such an author, standing well near the top among contemporaries, is churches have gained nearly 300,000 members since the 1900 census was taken. The total number of churches now stands at 308,884 and there are 195,513 ministers, priests and rabbis, with 44,700,521 members of their various organizations. The decrease in Sunday-school membership is estimated at more than 4,500,000.

Suppose among your casual acquaintances were a man wearing a different face—not a disguise—speaking a different voice, acting and living a changed personality, whom you discover to be actually someone you formerly had known intimately. Would you not be amazed and mystified? Such is the situation in "The Man Nobody Knew," excepting that the reader holds the secret. You see him in his former identity wherein he was a failure, with record not too savory. You follow him in his changed character going among the same people with all his old proclivities and temptations, yet patiently redeeming the past, making good. His experiences and adventures are remarkable and he has the oldest, most difficult problem ever placed before a man. It especially concerns the girl who had refused him in his former life.

The total Protestant church membership is given at 25,906,466 and the Roman Catholic figures at 17,540,304. It is explained the Protestant figures include only adult communicant members of a family, while the Roman Catholic statistics represent the entire family. Estimate four persons to a family, the Protestant constituency would be more than 50,000,000 the book says.

An estimate of members of synagogues is 260,000, and the two Mormon bodies report a membership of 494,388.

The largest Protestant body reporting was the Methodist Episcopal church with 4,175,502 members, and the smallest the Primitive Friends, with fifty members and two ministers. The national Baptist convention (colored) is the second largest Protestant organization, with 2,938,579.

led him to a horse. Soon the posse was off again, having left the prisoner in charge of one of the men. They swung round in a wide half circle, not wishing to startle their game until the proper time.

When they reached the edge of the mesa that looked down on the flatiron the moon was out, and the valley was swimming in light. They followed the dip of a road that led down to the corral. Passing the fenced lane leading to the stable, they tied their ponies inside and took the places assigned to them by Cullison.

They had not long to wait. In less than half an hour three shadowy figures slipped round the edge of the corral and up the lane. Each of them carried a rifle in addition to his hip guns.

They slid into the open end of the stable. Cullison's voice rang out coldly. "Drop your guns!"

A startled oath, a shot, and before one could have lifted a hand that silent moonlit valley of peace had become a battlefield.

The outlaws fell back from the stable, weapons smoking furiously. Blackwell broke into a run, never looking behind him, but Soapy and Bud Bill gave back foot by foot fighting every step of the way.

Dick and Curly rose from behind the rocks where they had been placed and closed the trap on Blackwell. The paroled convict let out one yell.

"I give up. Goddammit, don't shoot!"

Half way down the lane Cranston was hit. In the darkness his voice could be heard, for the firing had momentarily ceased.

"They've got me, Soapy. Run for it. I'll hold 'em back."

"It's back, Bill!"

"It's all in, Yarns!"

Stone turned to run, and for the first time saw that his retreat was cut off. As fast as he could pump the lever his rifle began working again.

The firing this time did not last more than five seconds. When the smoke cleared it was all over. Soapy lay on his back, shot through and through. Blackwell had taken advantage of the diversion to crawl through the strands of barbed wire and to disappear in the chaparral. Bill had rolled over on his face.

Dick was bending over Stone. He looked up at the approach of Curly and said just one word.

"Dead."

Cullison had torn open Cranston's shirt and was examining his wounds.

"No use, Luck. I've got a plenty. You sure fooled us though. Was At Sam gave us away?"

"No, Bill. Curly overheard Soapy and Blackwell at Chalkley's place. Sam stood pat, though you were planning to murder him."

"I wasn't in on that, Luck—didn't know a thing about it till after the boy was shot. I wouldn't stand for it."

"He wasn't shot. Curly saved him. He had to give you away to do it."

"Good enough. Serves Soapy right for double-crossing Sam. Take care of that kid, Luck. He's all right yet. His eye fell on Flaudran. "You're a game sport, son. You beat us all. No hard feelings."

"Sorry it had to be this way, Bill." The dying man was already gray to the lips, but his nerve did not falter. "It had to come some time. And it was Luck ought to have done it, too." He waved aside Sweeney, who was holding a flask to his lips. "What's the use? I've got mine. Say, there's something else, boys. Curly has been accused of that Bar Double M horse rustling back in the early summer. I did that job. He was not one of us. You hear, boys. Curly was not in it."

A quarter of an hour later he died. He had lied to save from the penitentiary the lad who had brought about his death. Curly knew why he had done it—because he felt himself to blame for the affair. May the Red Bill had been a desperate, a miscreant according to the usual standard, but when it came to dying he knew how to go better than many a respectable citizen. Curly stole off into the darkness so that the boys would not see him play the body.

ABOLISH CAPITAL PUNISHMENT SAYS CHICAGO JUDGE

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—(United Press)—"Abolish capital punishment and fewer murders will be committed," Judge Robert E. Crowe, of the criminal court here declared. "Why it is I cannot say but Chicago courts can only convict 50 per cent. of those charged with murder. Eighty per cent. of those charged with other crimes are convicted. The only reason I can see for this is the jury. The jury, when a murder case faces them become worried over the probable long imprisonment and in order to shorten it they fail to return a conviction for the culprit."

A remedy for this is to do away with capital punishment and by the sentence for all such cases as life imprisonment. When I sentence a man to hang now it is because it is the only sure way to prevent a recurrence of the crime. As it is now, if a murderer is sentenced to life imprisonment the term is rarely served. After a few years the case comes up before a pardon board, and the defendant is released. So when I say do away with capital punishment, include the pardon board. Then when a murderer is sentenced to life imprisonment, life it will be. A person with murder in his heart will think twice before he commits crime if he knows life imprisonment is the punishment.

CALL FOR OLD BUDDIES TO JOIN FIFTH MARINES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The Fifth Regiment of Marines, of Belleau Wood fame, which was demobilized last August, is to be immediately re-organized according to advices from Marine corps headquarters.

Only men who have served in the Marine corps of the army will be accepted for duty with the Fifth Marines, and Marine recruiting officer will be notified to make a special effort to get in touch with former Fifth Regiment men.

The Fifth saw service in all the big American offensives in France, and, in addition, the French offensive in the Champagne. The regiment was cited three times by the French army, and is one of the few American organizations whose men have the privilege of wearing the French "fourragere" or citation cord on the left shoulder of their uniforms.

THE "LAST WOLF" NOT YET

Several Progress readers are not satisfied with the end of the "last wolf" series and claim that our different correspondents were "too previous" by at least several years. "THE United States consumes one-half of the world's production of newspaper and yet we have but one-fifth of the world's population. At the present rate of consumption and destruction by fire, insects and fungus growth, one is forced to the conclusion that the time is not far distant when a substitute for spruce in the making of newspaper will have to be found and one of the most likely sources of supply is to be found in the vast quantities of straw from the grain growing areas which at the present time is being wasted," says Mr. Frank Baackes, V. P. American Steel & Wire Company.

"There have been quite a number of paper mills established where straw is most available but they have made little but what is known as meat paper of the coarsest grade. "It is a mere matter of time when we will have an efficient paper which will have to be made from straw."

"The great power of the American press should be able to think out a feasible plan. Producing it will be necessary to have some sort of a special machinery run on straw. Straw, being better, against the shipped straw, is a desirable material for making medium grade paper. Straw is a common paper which will go from straw to paper, may be the cheapest way to do it. Within a radius of a hundred miles within this state paper mills are being built and located in the trucks, especially in the straw where freight is determined by weight and a return cargo desirable. "It is a mere matter of time when we will have an efficient paper which will have to be made from straw."

LADIES! DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

Look Years Younger! Use Grandmother's recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur and Nobody will Know

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is messy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair. A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By continuing the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark and glossy. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful taste preparation for those who desire a more youthful appearance.

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS CURWENSVILLE

Clair Peoples, who has been a clerk at the Park House for over two years, has resigned and will take over a job in the hard clay mines of the Crescent Refractories company.

A Japanese convert to Christianity puts upon his door every morning before leaving for his day's work: "I am a Christian, and if anyone likes to read my good book while I am out, he may." A commendable and beautiful spirit, truly, and perfectly practicable in heathen Japan, but in Christian America the proper thing to do is to close your shutters, double lock your doors, hide the key and have the policeman give a little special attention to your property.

Mid-winter examinations are now being held in the High school, and pupils are putting their noses pretty close to the desk lid and vying with each other in order to see who will have the best marks.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Daub, on Monday night, a young daughter.

A son of Enos Obrine, residing about one mile from town, is ill, suffering from leakage of the heart. The young man is subject to this affliction.

Sleighting parties are in vogue these moonlit evenings. Almost every night parties are going and coming, and the merry jingle of bells, coupled with the joyous laughter of those enjoying the ride, causes envy to rankle in the breast of us old ducks who have passed the age of such enjoyments, but brings before us most vividly memories of days gone by. Oh could we but go back to those delightful wintry nights, when fifteen or twenty young couples sled-loaded out the pike to Aunt Polly Drucker's house, danced the light fantastic toe for several hours, ate a grand supper, and often arrived home as day was breaking. Those were sled rides that still remain fresh in the memory of those youngsters, now gray-haired men of fifty years, what is left of them, to ponder over the thought that "times now are not what they used to be."

At a recent meeting a reorganization of the school board took place, two of the old board retiring and the new members of the board are: A. G. Woodward, of the second ward, and Dr. H. O. King, of the first ward. The officers elected by the new board are: President, C. O. Norris; vice president, Frank C. Mullen and secretary, Fred P. Robinson.

At a regular meeting of the Loyal Order of Moose held in their hall north Filbert street, on Monday evening, a full corps of officers were put in nomination for the ensuing term.

Several times during the past month we have been asked the question as to how many persons were buried in Oak Hill cemetery who were born prior to the year 1800. Fleming 1788, Abram Hartsock 1788, Esther Hartsock 1792, John Irvin, Sr., 1796, John Jordan 1781, Eve Jordan 1792, Henry Kepns, Sr., 1790, John Patton 1783, Susan Antis Patton 1791, Thomas Ross 1790, Robert Ross 1794, Anna Ross 1797, Charles Royston 1791. The last named being the first body to be buried in what is now known as Oak Hill cemetery.

The Man Nobody Knew

It follows our policy to present the best in current fiction, each story dealing with a phase of life unlike the others. Authors with a talent for presenting in a wholesome, entertaining way unusual situations and odd, original plots have been selected. Such an author, standing well near the top among contemporaries, is

Holworthy Hall

Suppose among your casual acquaintances were a man wearing a different face—not a disguise—speaking a different voice, acting and living a changed personality, whom you discover to be actually someone you formerly had known intimately. Would you not be amazed and mystified? Such is the situation in "The Man Nobody Knew," excepting that the reader holds the secret. You see him in his former identity wherein he was a failure, with record not too savory. You follow him in his changed character going among the same people with all his old proclivities and temptations, yet patiently redeeming the past, making good. His experiences and adventures are remarkable and he has the oldest, most difficult problem ever placed before a man. It especially concerns the girl who had refused him in his former life.

THREE MORE ADDED TO CHURCH IN PAST TIME

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—(Special) churches have gained nearly 300,000 members since the last census was taken in 1900, but there has been a marked decrease in the number of Sunday schools and day-school pupils. According to the "year book of the churches," which was issued today by the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

The total church membership has increased 2,779,667, the announcement says, despite the disturbed social conditions due to reconstruction. There has also been an increase of 3519 ministers and 5566 church organizations. The total number of churches now stands at 308,884 and there are 195,513 ministers, priests and rabbis, with 44,700,561 members of their various organizations. The decrease in Sunday-school membership is estimated at more than 4,500,000.

The total Protestant church membership is given at 25,906,466 and the Roman Catholic figures at 17,540,304. It is explained the Protestant figures include only adult communicant members of a family, while the Roman Catholic statistics represent the entire family. Estimate four persons to a family, the Protestant constituency would be more than 100,000,000 the book says.

An estimate of members of synagogues is 260,000, and the two Mormon bodies report a membership of 494,388.

The largest Protestant body reporting was the Methodist Episcopal church with 4,175,502 members, and the smallest the Primitive Friends, with fifty members and two ministers. The national Baptist convention (colored) is the second largest Protestant organization, with 2,938,579.

led him to a horse. Soon the posse was off again, leaving the prisoner in charge of one of the men. They swung round in a wide half circle, not wishing to startle their game until the proper time.

When they reached the edge of the mesa that looked down on the flatiron the moon was out, and the valley was swimming in light. They followed the dip of a road that led down to the corral. Passing the fenced lane leading to the stable, they tied their ponies inside and took the places assigned to them by Cullison.

They had not long to wait. In less than half an hour three shadowy figures slipped round the edge of the corral and up the lane. Each of them carried a rifle in addition to his hip guns.

They slid into the open end of the stable. Cullison's voice rang out coldly. "Drop your guns!"

A startled oath, a shot, and before one could have lifted a hand that silent moonlit valley of peace had become a battlefield.

The outlaws fell back from the stable, weapons smoking furiously. Blackwell broke into a run, never looking behind him, but Soapy and Bud Bill gave back foot by foot fighting every step of the way.

Dick and Curly rose from behind the rocks where they had been placed and closed the trap on Blackwell. The paroled convict let out one yell.

"I give up. Goddammit, don't shoot!"

Half way down the lane Cranston was hit. In the darkness his voice could be heard, for the firing had momentarily ceased.

"They've got me, Soapy. Run for it. I'll hold 'em back."

"It's back, Bill!"

"It's all in, Yarns!"

Stone turned to run, and for the first time saw that his retreat was cut off. As fast as he could pump the lever his rifle began working again.

The firing this time did not last more than five seconds. When the smoke cleared it was all over. Soapy lay on his back, shot through and through. Blackwell had taken advantage of the diversion to crawl through the strands of barbed wire and to disappear in the chaparral. Bill had rolled over on his face.

Dick was bending over Stone. He looked up at the approach of Curly and said just one word.

"Dead."

Cullison had torn open Cranston's shirt and was examining his wounds.

"No use, Luck. I've got a plenty. You sure fooled us though. Was At Sam gave us away?"

"No, Bill. Curly overheard Soapy and Blackwell at Chalkley's place. Sam stood pat, though you were planning to murder him."

"I wasn't in on that, Luck—didn't know a thing about it till after the boy was shot. I wouldn't a stood for it."

"He wasn't shot. Curly saved him. He had to give you away to do it."

"Good enough. Serves Soapy right for double-crossing Sam. Take care of that kid, Luck. He's all right yet. His eye fell on Flaudran. "You're a game sport, son. You beat us all. No hard feelings."

"Sorry it had to be this way, Bill." The dying man was already gray to the lips, but his nerve did not falter. "It had to come some time. And it was Luck ought to have done it, too." He waved aside Sweeney, who was holding a flask to his lips. "What's the use? I've got mine. Say, there's something else, boys. Curly has been accused of that Bar Double M horse rustling back in the early summer. I did that job. He was not one of us. You hear, boys. Curly was not in it."

A quarter of an hour later he died. He had lied to save from the penitentiary the lad who had brought about his death. Curly knew why he had done it—because he felt himself to blame for the affair. May the Red Bill had been a desperate, a miscreant according to the usual standard, but when it came to dying he knew how to go better than many a respectable citizen. Curly stole off into the darkness so that the boys would not see him play the body.

ABOLISH CAPITAL PUNISHMENT SAYS CHICAGO JUDGE

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—(United Press) "Abolish capital punishment and fewer murders will be committed," Judge Robert E. Crowe, of the criminal court here declared. "Why it is I cannot say but Chicago courts can only convict 50 per cent. of those charged with murder. Eighty per cent. of those charged with other crimes are convicted. The only reason I can see for this is the jury. The jury, when a murder case faces them become worried over the probable long imprisonment and in order to shorten it they fail to return a conviction for the culprit."

A remedy for this is to do away with capital punishment and fix the sentence for all such cases at life imprisonment. When I sentence a man to hang now it is because it is the only sure way to prevent a recurrence of the crime. As it is now, if a murderer is sentenced to life imprisonment the term is rarely served. After a few years the case comes up before a pardon board, and the defendant is released. So when I say do away with capital punishment, include the pardon board. Then when a murderer is sentenced to life imprisonment, life it will be. A person with murder in his heart will think twice before he commits crime if he knows life imprisonment is the punishment.

"THE United States consumes one-half of the world's production of newspaper and yet we have but one-fiftieth of the world's population. At the present rate of consumption and destruction by fire, insects and fungus growth, one is forced to the conclusion that the time is not far distant when a substitute for spruce in the making of newspaper will have to be found and one of the most likely sources of supply is to be found in the vast quantities of straw from the grain growing areas which at the present time is being wasted." says Mr. Frank Baackes, V. P. American Steel & Wire Company.

"There have been quite a number of paper mills established where straw is most available but they have made little but what is known as meat paper of the coarsest grade."

"It is a mere matter of time when we will have an efficient paper which will have to be made from straw."

"There is no difficulty in making good white paper from such vegetable material, but the great trouble is to accumulate straw enough at any one point to keep the mill busy."

"The great power of the American press should be able to think out a feasible plan. Producing it will be necessary to have some sort of special commodity rate arranged so that the necessary for a business paper can supply straw to the mills."

"Straw, being better, against all shipped items, is becoming more and more for making cellulose pulp and for making a substitute for spruce in the making of newspaper will have to be found and one of the most likely sources of supply is to be found in the vast quantities of straw from the grain growing areas which at the present time is being wasted." says Mr. Frank Baackes, V. P. American Steel & Wire Company.
